

GMG RSS Feeds

What are RSS Feeds?

RSS Feeds enable you to subscribe to information from a Web site. The advantage of this is that new information is automatically communicated to subscribers, and no new information is missed. As a result, there is no need to constantly check the site for new information.

RSS Feeds can be subscribed to via a Web browser or an e-mail program, provided this function is supported in the e-mail program. RSS Feeds can also be displayed directly on the desktop with the help of widgets, for example.

Notes on installing RSS Feeds

The following notes on installation cover three common Web browsers and Microsoft Outlook 2007.

Links to GMG RSS Feeds are to be found on the start page, under the heading "News & Events/News" or "News & Events/Events", and also on the German site under "About GMG/Career".

Microsoft Outlook 2007

Copy the RSS Feed link. Then go to the RSS Feed folder in Outlook 2007 and mark this folder. Clicking the right mouse button opens a menu that allows you to add a new RSS Feed. Paste the link of the GMG RSS Feed into the corresponding input field.

You then receive e-mail notification as soon as a new event or a new Press Release is uploaded to the GMG site.

Microsoft Internet Explorer

You can find the icon for RSS Feeds in the Internet Explorer menu bar. As soon as a link to an RSS Feed is available on a site, the icon no longer appears in gray. Then click on the RSS Feed icon. A site with the GMG RSS Feed is displayed, together with a message box. You can use this message box to subscribe to the RSS Feeds.

Mozilla Firefox

You can find the icon for RSS Feeds in the address bar of Firefox as soon as a link to an RSS Feed is available on a site. Then click on the RSS Feed icon. A site with the GMG RSS Feed is displayed, together with a message box. You can use this message box to subscribe to the GMG RSS Feeds, either as a dynamic bookmark, or with the help of an RSS reader.

Safari

You can find the icon for RSS Feeds in the address bar of Safari as soon as a link to an RSS Feed is available on a site. Then click on the RSS Feed icon. A site with the GMG RSS Feed is displayed. You can now add this site to your bookmarks to give you rapid access to it at all times.
